I did have trouble a few semesters ago, but I know I am on the right track now. I am grateful for any scholarships I receive because it usually makes me want to work harder. I am getting my degree in business administration since it is versatile, and I can get a job almost anywhere. I do enjoy college and learning new things. Sometimes I think about starting my own business that will help the reservation I live on, such as a pet shelter. I have lots of goals I hope to achieve like graduating college with my associate's degree, then getting my bachelor's degree, finding a good job, getting a good vehicle and being financially stable.
